

J. F. KENNEDY, JR. HIGH '77 - '78

Lori Crand

Mrs. Crand
I'll Be the first one to write on the cover. My Picture came out awful. I hope you have a nice summer
And I'll miss
you. Love
Sandy Hallenbeck

Mrs. Crand,
I'll come back to see you next year. I'll miss you next year.
Love,
RITA
HASSON

WE WILL NEVER KNOW WHERE OUR ROADS LEAD US TO

IN MEMORY

Many years from now,
I will think of how
A man who gave so much
Will be remembered by J.F.K.

The classroom is filled
With all our despair
He is gone
But memories linger there.

He taught us to live
And to appreciate life.
We do respect him.

To the proud young man,
Who took the brave stand,
Ernest John Rhodes, we honor him now.

His memory doesn't need to be revived,
For it has never died.

Mr. Rhodes was ill;
People acted carelessly.
Deep inside they cared.

WRESTLING

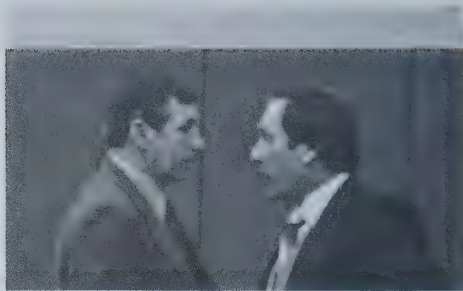

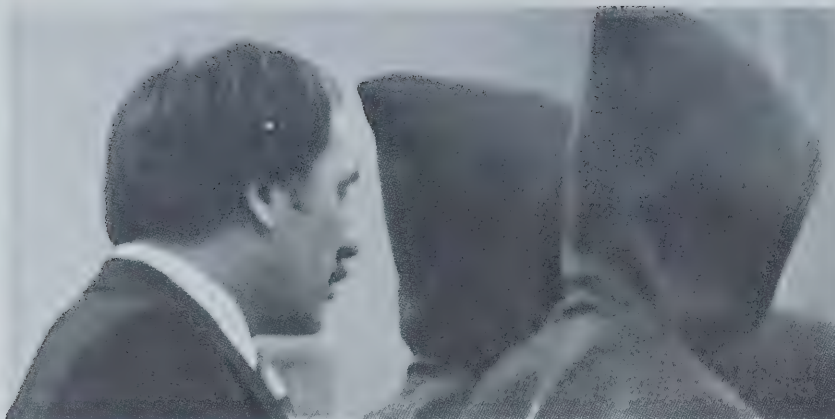

Coach Mr. Andrychowski

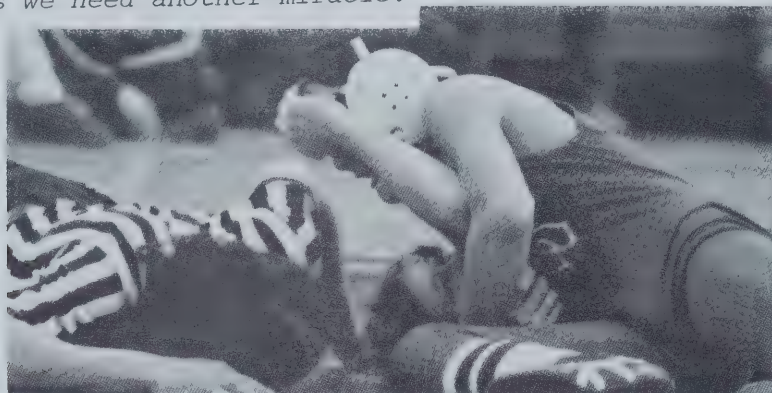

Captain- John Ciemniewski

So we meet again

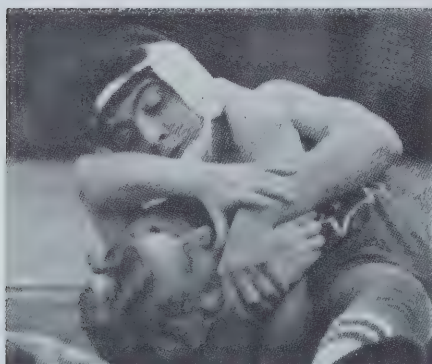

Brothers we need another miracle.

Wait I dropped my whistle.

Gitty up horsey

I feel like a pretzel.

Last Will and Testament

Since our paths will never bring us this way again, we the Class of 1981 leave the following remembrances:

We, Rae Lowe, Erin Conley, Anna Vassallo, Ann Holland, Lori Thibeault, Mary Moriarty, Bill Dombek and Andy Hayden, leave "Ma Stillo" a box of colored chalk to help her with her spectacular artistic drawings.

We, Mr. Pastore's Graphic Arts classes, leave him "That type of thing" which he uses so many times in class.

We, the Varsity Soccer team, leave Mr. Clarkin the memories of our "77 - "78 season.

I, Jeff McNeely, leave to Mr. Sweet a list of questions I never had a chance to ask him.

We, Tom Rielly, Matt Patsky, Kevin Flenke and Greg Sorrentino, leave Mrs. Dumais 10 free art lessons and 3 inches of height so she can reach the top of the blackboard.

We, Paula Kweder and Linda DiBella leave J.F.K. with more good friends and memories than anyone could ever dream of having.

I, Karen Hyer, leave Mr. Arnold a pair of dirty, old, sneakers.

I, Rae Lowe, leave Mr. Robinson a great big "Thank you" and hopes that some deserving student will get my seat in White House Office.

We, Mr. Stoll's 1st period Geometry class, leave him a six-striped tie to give him a little more class.

I, Lori Thibeault, leave Mr. Ferguson a bag of candy for his "sore throat."

We, the 1977-78 Varsity Football team leave the Varsity Soccer team a huge poster saying "Football is #1."

We, Jeff Withee, Mark Peucker, and Jeff Wheeler, leave Mr. Haley an automatic sweater remover so that he won't ever mess up his hair.

I, Denise Maznicki, leave to Leslie Canino the leadership of the Itty Bitty committee in hopes that she will carry on the tradition and take all the jokes about the committee.

We, Mr. Carney's best students, Cliff Lane, Paul Diorio, Michael LaFountain, leave him our worst test grades in hopes he will distribute easier quizzes.

I, Lisa Macaluso, leave to my sister, Lori, all the great times I had at Kennedy, in hopes that she'll have just as many.

I, Michael Brewer, leave Mr. Climan all the work I didn't get done while I was a band-aid.

We, Mrs. D'Amato's 3rd period class, leave her nothing, in hopes she will find something to do with it.

We, the girls at the first table in 5th lunch, leave Mr. Stoll all our phone numbers.

We, Gretchen Pieper and Laurie Bugai, leave Miss Nealon the Joe Namoth poster she never got.

We, Patty Wacht and Lori Thibeault, leave Mr. Sweet a book of magic tricks in hopes his new students will enjoy them as much as we did.

We, Linda Kehler and Angela Beaver, leave Mr. Donnelly Lake Erie, a sewage pump, and lots of luck.

We the ninth graders leave J.F.K. still wondering what it is that Mr. Mahoney does.

We, Ken Klapproth, Paul Russel, Bill George, Al Kissell, and all the wrestling starters, leave Mr. Andy our collection of "Mickey Mouse" pictures, in hopes that he will find a better place to hang them.

We, Dave Shattuck, Maureen Welch, and Mary Baranaski, Leave Mrs. Dyer with all the things that Allan Moore ruined while trying to create faster ways to cook things.

I, an anonymous source, leave next year's ski club free of Kim in hopes that Mt. Tom will be able to put itself back together again by next winter.

We, Mr. Milroy's 6th period class, leave him a life size statue of Sue Krajewski with the expression "I don't understand" engraved on it, in remembrance of our class.

I, Nancy Malinoski, leave Mr. Sullivan one live white squirrel so the one he "saw" can have a friend.

I, Janet Ciemniowski, leave next year's wrestling team to Mr. Paluck so they can listen to him call wrestling a "minor" sport and then get even with him.

We, Mary Moriarty and Lauren Riley, leave Mr. Charland still wondering who changed around his filmstrips.

We, Mr. Connor's first semester's sixth period class, leave him the surprise party that we so quietly planned-and would have had if he didn't stick so loyally to the school rules.

I, Bill Teed, leave the book "I Love Myself", to Val Kropwinicki in hopes that he will carry on the tradition.

We, Rhonda Gottlieb and Denise Parent leave our sister and brother - at last!

We, Eileen Clark and Lisa Cavallero, leave Mr. Askin a pile of book marks so students will know what page he is on.

We, the Kennedy Drama Guild, leave Mrs. Gaj one glass slipper and a "Prince Charming" of her very own.

We, Mr. Cowles' 5th period American Indian class, leave him 10 little Indians.

We, the ninth graders, leave the entire school in the hands of the seventh and eighth graders.

I, Sue Kadis, leave the pencil shavings from all my pencils that were chewed up by the school's pencil sharpeners.

I, Laurie Bugai, leave Mr. Bloomberg the book, Color Coordination and The Importance of Dressing Correctly.

We, Judy Connors and Nanette Fortier, leave Mr. Demers the book, Popular Stories for the Parts of the Body.

We, the ninth graders who stand at the corner in the morning, leave Mr. Gregorski a pair of binoculars.

We, the ninth grade, leave the Guidance Department a better selection of music - W C C C.

We, Nanette Fortier, Sheryl Martin, Kim Williams Robin Murray, Steven Cartwright, Sherri Phelan, Alison Cooke, Roger Waggener, Suzanne Maciolek and Debbie Weeks, leave Miss Rodrigues a string of rosary beads, a Bible, and a letter from the Pope.

Ellen Vitkauskas and Michael Brewer leave Mr. Sweet free singing lessons with hopes that he will finally learn to sing.

We, Al Kissell and Brian Green, leave Mr. Haley some tools, paint and work clothes so that he will be prepared the next time his car dies out.

I, Kris Neale, leave Mrs. Ward all the half chewed pieces of gum that I never threw away when she told me to.

We, Jeff Withee, Ann Sullivan and Karen Ferreira, leave Mrs. D'Amato the word "Adios" for a long time!

Left to Mr. Fisher's next year's classes are all the witty remarks, which are few in number, and all the dumb remarks, which are in an endless supply, to his next year's anthropology class.

We, Sharon Cheney and Susan Stoppani, leave Mr. Milroy a box of "wet ones" so he can wipe his hands after writing on the blackboard.

We, Miss Ryba's 2nd period, 1st semester Black Struggle class, leave her the satisfaction of knowing that we all learned how to draw conclusions.

We, Goob and Roto leave Miss Wynglarz and Miss Nealon all our unforgettable experiences that we shared with them during class and practices.

We, all the Kennedy students who had Mrs. Spink at one time or another, hope that she won't leave teaching until our younger brothers and sisters have her for class. Then they will believe us!.

We, Craig Newsam, George McDonough, Mike Whittemore, and Brenda Richards leave Mr. Peternell a pair of Mousekateer ears, because he reminds us of Mickey Mouse.

Mrs. Dumais' 6th period class give to John Ciemniowski and Dena Delaney the latest edition of Christmas Carols in case they ever have to do another duet.

We Diane Burnham, Kris Neale, Sue Krajewski, Todd Kaupin, Roger Waggener and Randy Nason, leave Mr. Fletcher a life size manikin of Nixon to display along with all his Russian pieces.

We, Mandy Childress, Mike Whittemore, Brigitt Jandreau and Kathy Schroder, leave Mr. Climan a good joke book so his future bands won't have to suffer like we did.

Mrs. Dumais leaves a sincere thank you to Mr. Connors and Mr. Pastore for their pictures and time, Mrs. Ivanisin for all the typing and Mr. Ohlin for his support.

Finally blast

Just as we begin our trip, an announcement comes over the ship's intercom, "Hello, this is Geri Sinnott, head stewardess for your voyage. I'd like to introduce the ship's crew. Our captain is Ken Klapproth, our co-piolots are Mike Burns and Donna Livingston, and our navigator is John Lipinski. Our stewardess staff includes Angie Beaver, Ellen Hemingway, Sandra Leonard, Doris Tamayo and Sue Parsons. Our ship's medical office is Robert Morton, and his nurses are Penny Pappas, Lisa Plumber, Linda Di Bella and Laurie Greene.

Meals will be served in 3 waves. The first wave for breakfast will be at 7:00, and the other waves will follow at 20 minute intervals. Lunch and dinner will be served with the same 20 minute schedule starting at noon and six. Starting at 7:30 there will be a movie "The Sky is Falling", shown in the movie room. It stars Mary Lobel, Lisa Cassandro, Jeff Maier, and Tim Moriarty and is directed by Denise Parent and Produced by Paula Kweder. Thank you for listening and have a nice flight."

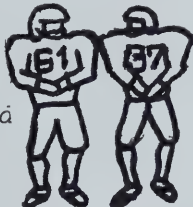

The flight went smoothly. At noon an annoucement was made that the first lunch wave was being served in the main cafe. It mostly consisted of the high society type; Brigitt Jandreau, Karen Linehan, Ann Sullivan, and Lou Bachetti who proceeded to eat their fill. While they were talking they found out something interesting about their old friends. Back on Earth, Al Kissell and Todd Kaupin had their own realtor's agency. Mark Gzarnecki, Pierre Bastien, and Sharon Carr were vice-presidents for insurance companies.

Karen Bethold and Patty Piotrowski owned a chain of fast food restaurants. Dawn Landry, Mark Johnson, Cheri Gould, John Reardon and Kim Riccardo are associated with the C.I.A. from whom we learned that John Ciemniowski is the head of the Mafia for this area, and he brought along Dena Delaney, Dave Fusco, Vinny Catania, Miriam Gil, Ann Giguere, Kim-Mule, and Rick Kutsavage who are his bodyguards and hit persons.

At this time our meal was interrupted for a toast. The toast was to the architects who designed our New City. They were Lori Chapman, Ginny Dumais, Tim Wingen, and Nancy Wood. The supervisor of the project was Tim Cotnoir. After our meal, we were invited to go to the game room or to go for a swim in the pool. The lifeguards at the pool were Eric Valukus, Mark Peucker, Lisa Cavallero and Lisa Oneto. In the game room there was an upset; something seemed to be the matter with the lights. Luckily, we had Bartley Smith and Scott Morgan aboard who turned out to be super great electricians. They had things patched up quickly. Soon we discovered one more slight problem. There was a burst in one of the bathroom toilets. We asked for help over the loud speaker and quickly came up with three plumbers, Karen McGuinness, Steve Nadeau and Scott Castle. Between the three of them they rigged up something so the bathroom was usable.

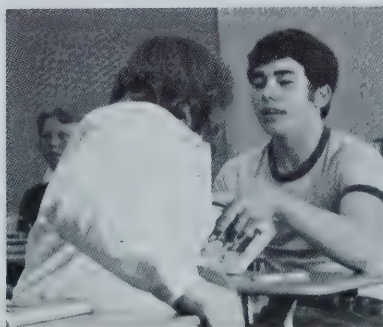

Evening came and supper began. At dinner we met Anna Vassello, Rae Lowe, Tammy Strouth, Steve Cartwright, and Chris Peel, who had started a chain of discobars in New York. We also met Ron Baer, Bill King, Jeff Withee and Joe Pulaski who are now professional football players for the Raiders. Bridges, Marc Pion, and to their managers Pam Kot about their next televised It was soon learned that board.

Jim Lacey, Mario Goncalves, Sam Scott Dubanoski were speaking Lisa Mann, and Loretta Dunagin soccer game. A commotion began. there were two stow-aways on

Not long after, two guards, Gerry Rocker and Marty Dupuis, brought Tracey Willis and Laura Catalina in. When everyone realized who it was, they asked the captain to set them free so they were released. Everyone was happy to see their old friends and they wanted to throw a party, but the movie was just about to begin.

We went over to the theater and the ushers, Sue Deragon, Mark Czarnecki, Chris Crowell and Ross Ellis, showed us to our seats. Before the movie started we had some live entertainment, Jim Mangino and his band played for us. The band included Steve Niedzielski, Brian Green, and Paul Brantner. After they finished their songs, Bob Brennen, Bill Dombeck, Jim Martocchio, Kevin O'Grady, and Debbie Stone, who run the audio equipment, started to show the movie.

After the movie we went to our rooms. In the corridor there was a fight. It seemed that Laura Leonard and Barb Levesque's room got mixed up with Rob Lally and Philip LaBonte's room. We called our floor counselor who was Steve Hebert, and he straightened the whole thing out.

Just then a UFO was spotted on the starboard side. People began to panic. The guards Dave Goodhue, Mike Hade, Barry Keleher, Lee Kelting, Ron Scavatto, Ron Guimond, and Tom Lavasseur, blocked off the corridors. The ship stopped and the aliens boarded the ship. They were riding space horses which were cared for by Heidi Martinson, Amanda Childress, MaryAnn Plocharezyk, and Lisa Dragone who used to own riding stables back on earth. They were heavily armed, and we recognized them immediately as Dave Dobrowski, Karen Hyer, Judy Setsky, Gretchen Pieper, Karen Africano, Tim Robbins, Dear Baron and Joe Barone. The leader was Gordon Massey. As he dismounted, he said, "We have come to gather recruits. Any volunteers?" Bob Reynolds, Bob Mages, Mike Maculas, Steve Meunier and Steve MacCarthy raised their hands and then left the ship.

With some of our passengers leaving, that left some rooms open. Lisa Kempton, Debbie Hudson, Meg Russel and Jan Sweeney who had to double-bunk before could now have their own rooms.

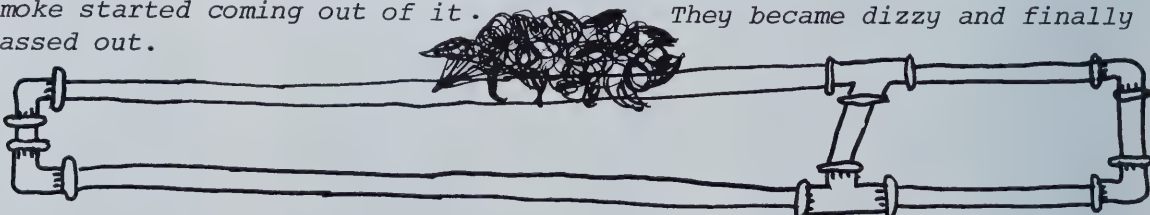

The next morning you could probably guess what the conversation was about. By lunch Mary Jo Powers, Gary Quint and Jeff Hurley had already managed to inform the entire vessel of the previous night's adventure.

Early in the afternoon a loud explosion was heard. Mark Cote, Craig Bean, Mark Bushey and Jim Staszko, the maintenance crew, searched the ship and found atomic charges set on engines #3 and 4. They reported that both engines were beyond repair and that they must use engines #1 and 2. The captain assumed that Phil Bottomley and Sandy Brayson set the charges, and they had abandoned ship when the intruders were aboard. The captain announced that we would have to cast some things overboard to lessen the ship's weight. The objects would be placed in recepticals and be picked up later.

Maritza Abrams, Karen Anderson, Dean Berry, Lori Blanchard, and Lisa Belssing shared the first receptical. Diane Kershaw, Sheila Hodgdon, Ann Holland, Tim Roman and Jaime Rotatori refused to dispose of their belongings until the captain explained that if they didn't cooperate, they would be placed in the recepticals themselves. After the recepticals were marked and deposited, there wasn't much to do until Lisa Kempton decided that they would look over the ship's engine room.

The engine crew, Janet Jackman, Gary Paquette, Patty Rabb, Chris Chaput and Dan Brososky, were still at lunch so the girls had an easy time getting in. They walked over to the damaged engines and a green smoke started coming out of it. They became dizzy and finally passed out.

The smoke alarm alerted the rescue crew, Alaine Lagasse, Marjorie Oppenheimer, Rick Kutsavage, Val Savage and Brenda Saunders who quickly came, stopped the smoke, and saved the two adventurers. Then the girls were brought to the medical ward. The ship's doctor, Bob, couldn't figure out a cure so he called for a special team of surgeons; Karen Huard, Dan Loughrey, George McDonough, Karen Ferreira, and Linda Gnatek. They worked all day and all night but still couldn't figure out how to save them.

When Brenda Richards, Lynn Cote, Cheryl Kuzman, Steve Haley, and Mark Gallo, all chemists, heard this, they all went to the engine room to try to figure out what it was by capturing some gas and bringing it to Gloria Grob and Bill George who were the computer operators. The computer analyzed the gas and found it was a rare compound that must have been formed when the engine exploded.

Rhonda Gottlieb, our messenger, brought the analysis to the surgeons who took it from there. They found the cure and our two adventurers were back to normal before long.

Lunch was being served, and since it was our last meal together before landing, the captain arranged for some live entertainment. Steve Maznicki, Dan Carden, Scott Faber and Chris Massey from the engineering section worked the lights and curtain.

The first number was a performance by the kitchen section, Natalie Anderson, Lori Fortin and Sue Rancourt, who did a take off on the Andrew sisters. Diane Crosson, Sue Krajewski, Dan Donahue and Dave Dobrowski from security did a comedy on W.W. 11. For the finale, maintenance's Vicky Lyons, Rog Giguere, Bob Golden and Nannette Fortier, and the computer room's Maura Coughin, Darlene Mann, Karen Manning, and Kathy Dippel did a number on "School Days," starring Paul Russel as Mr. Mahoney.

After the show the captain announced that the moon was in sight, and we would be docking in about half an hour. Everyone was asked to return to their seats.

In the cockpit, the captain was radioing the control tower who were John Coffey, Tammy Daniels, Sue Croce, and Beth Merrill, all of whom he knew from school. The captain was also informed that he would be greeted by Annette Pare who was the mayor of the new bubble city and Paula Montminy, Lori Thibeault, Kris Neal, Michelle Richotte, and Sonja Paquette who were his staff.

The ship docked safely and the hatch soon opened. As soon as it opened Ronnie Guimond, Sue Holeman, Tina Wheat, Holly Lupacchino, and Cliff Thorstenson, the newsstaff of this new city, came in and began to interview the captain about the trip. A moment later the mayor and his staff greeted the captain and welcomed the ship to the city.

The mayor introduced Lori Bugai, Cindy Moxley, Bill Ouellette, Roger Simmons and Donald Roy who would show the passengers to their new highrise condominiums. Diane Booth, Liz Nicholas, Jackie Brewer, Francis Ravenola and Debbie Carlone owned these condominiums and would show the passengers from the ship to their respective rooms.

As the passengers were leaving, the captain asked for volunteers to go with him to pick up the recepticals. Gary McCarthy, Sheryl Winston, Bill Mowrey, Patty McGill, and Frank Ouellette said they would help. The rest of the passengers disembarked and went to their rooms.

A few hours later the ship returned with the rest of the passengers' belongings, which were distributed by Ken Fahy, Robin Murray, Sue Maciolek and Erin Conley.

That night there was a big reception in the main building to welcome everyone to the moon and to wish them a long and enjoyable stay.

Even to us, it with times.

though our residence would be completely new certainly was going to be great to share it friends whom we had already shared many good
